

So you clicked, most likely out of curiosity.

And you're thinking -what in the world? On a horse site?

I started this about 4 years ago, my way of sharing a way of life I found. His spirit lives in me reminding me that even with all my shortcomings (and there are many) He still forgives and loves me. I have been blessed with that "peace that passes all understanding".

I know in the deepest part of my being that things are going to be alright.

Seeking God can happen to anyone, at any age, at any time high or low in ones life. You just have to ask. Invite Him to come to your life and then watch amazing things happen. People will pop into your life at just the right time for just the right thing. "Circumstances" are noticed more and at an intensity that you just know the hand of God was there whatever the situation was.

As the manager of this busy facility I meet thousands of people who share the love of horses each year. Some of you have become dear friends, close acquaintances and all of you are part of something big. As I get older I have the sense of urgency to tell you all about God's plan for the salvation of our souls. This is not all there is! Without a doubt our essence in spirit goes on. The question we should ask is where to? It's pretty simple really, which is why a lot of people don't get it. Humans tend to complicate things. If you had a choice to spend forever in a paradise why wouldn't you? What is so mind numbing to believe that a loving God would send his Son to die in our place so we can go to Him? He is not dead anymore. The tomb was empty. Hard to imagine and a leap of faith is required to take this to heart. No scientist, theologian, atheist, or archeologist has ever proven he did not become alive again. We who believe can trust the written Word. Inspired by God, written by men it holds our guidelines for a beautiful life while we're here. It is my hope when I pass away people will remember the Christ like things I did and said, not my human faults. God Bless.

May you always ride a good horse.
